method are often prescribed by mathematically modeling the rate of diffusion of water in the material